

AMERICAN MARXISM

In 2021, Mark Levin, continued his production of insightful, cogent, and well-researched books, including Liberty and Tyranny, The Liberty Amendments, Unfreedom of the Press, and Men in Black to name a few. His most recent release is the one we will delve into today: American Marxism.

First of all, there is a reason that I have chosen not to present an individual or group to honor on this Memorial Day Eve which has been my practice over the years. However, our client nation, which so many individuals have fought to defend, some of whom gave the ultimate sacrifice of their lives, are now being besmirched by an insidious force within our own borders.

I will soon turn 82 years of age. I was born in July 1941, just a few months before the beginning of World War II when the Imperial Japanese Navy Air Service bombed Pearl Harbor in Honolulu, Hawaii, on Sunday, December 7, 1941.

Prior to this and beginning with the War for Independence (1775–83) fourteen significant engagements occurred: War of 1812 (1812–15), War of Texas Independence (1836), Mexican-American War (1846–48), the War between the States (1861–65), Spanish-American War (1898), World War I (1914–18), World War II (1939–45), Korean War (1950–53), Vietnam War (1960–75), Persian Gulf (1990–91), Afghanistan (2001–21), Iraq (2003–11), and Libya (2015–23).¹

In these and other minor conflicts, members of the United States armed forces were deployed into harm's way. The present total of those killed in action exceed 2,295,000.

In my 38 years here as pastor we have systematically saluted those who have been deployed into harm's way, those who have been injured in combat, and those killed in action. Presently, we have no significant hot spots being engaged.

At least, not those in military uniform. Our armed forces are not literally deployed to hot spots officially, but they are scattered around the world both in-country and beyond. Their jobs were to protect the client nation from foreign predators, and they have successfully done their jobs.

Then, in 2020 these soldiers, sailors, pilots, and marines were stunned to discover that they and their fellow combatants who died to keep the nation free from foreign aggressors were betrayed by their own fellow citizens.

No foreign force advanced upon the nation's shores from afar. Yet, stunningly the unthinkable occurred. Americans took to the streets and committed the kind of violence these military personnel had fought, bled, and died to prevent from happening. In the homeland.

Suddenly, without warning, fellow citizens attacked other fellow citizens. Businesses were invaded, private property was stolen, employees and owners were attacked, some were killed. In many cases, the building was burned. Grand theft was commonplace. Lives were lost in the streets. Mayhem was the order of the day and night.

The cost of lives, property, and possessions all occurred without any meaningful resistance as the perpetrators got away scot-free, leaving their aftermath the devastation a foreign army would have been pleased to claim.

Question? In over two and one-half years, the chaos that occurred, the lives that were lost, the property that was stolen, and the devastation left behind can only be explained by a sinister wonderment that this nation was attacked while the powers that be turned a blind eye in complicity.

There is only one conclusion that one is left to logically consider. Whereas one of the most powerful military organizations in history has been left standing unmoved while the nation has been ransacked not by the Chinese, the Russians, or even the invading throngs crossing the southern border, but by our own fellow citizens.

Thus, there is only one logical conclusion that can be considered: The United States is presently being overthrown from within. Not by a foreign adversary but by a complicit government in concert with lawless citizens.

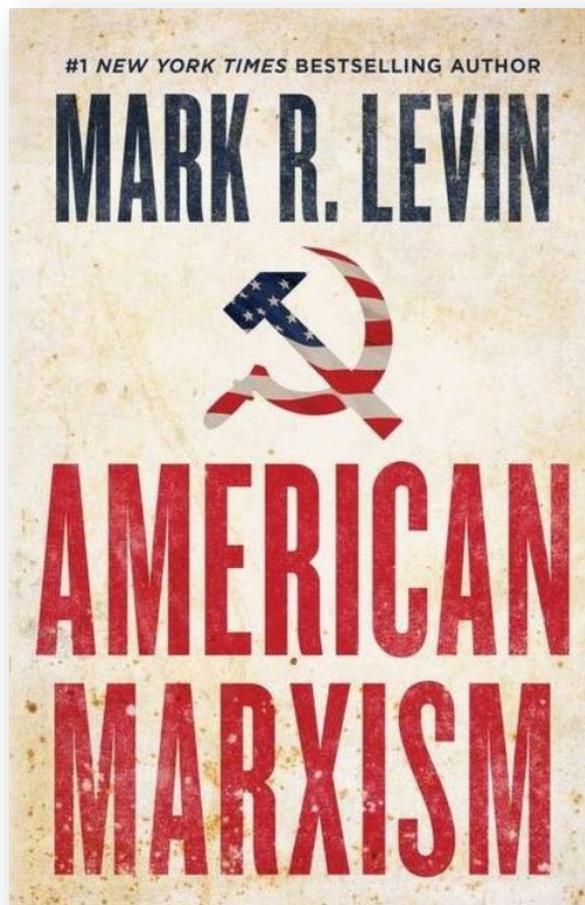

Therefore, on this Memorial Day 2023, we meet here to look back on the mayhem that has engulfed this client nation by a government focused on overthrowing the government.

The endgame is the implementation of Marxism in concert with other nations who presently deploy such a system. The people, those who are left alive, will be mollified by a steady diet of bugs while living in dormitories.

With the current Zeitgeist in mind, I have chosen not to salute the military heroes as has been the norm but to cite excerpts from Mark Levin's book, American Marxism. This title is an exposé of the presently developing agenda by your fellow citizens in power whose clear focus on your future is found right out of Dark Side's strategy client-nation America's coup de grâce.
